

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

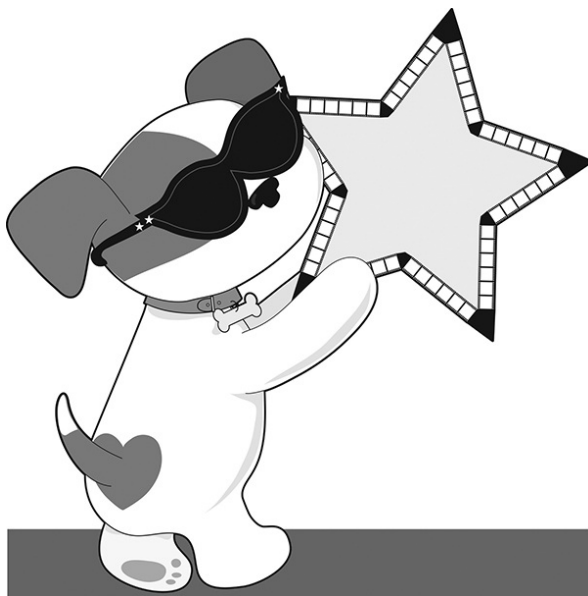

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

What do I know about animals in show business?

Learning Outcome

Identify and describe events in the news in a range of social and work contexts.

Ask your partner:

- What animals are considered "stars" in your country? Why?
- How do you feel about animal celebrities?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about nature and the animal world.
- I can show I understand someone's feelings.
- I can ask for clarification or use rhetorical questions to emphasize a point.

Let's Explore!

Sally blogs about animal TV stars. What has happened in the last decade or so?

* You use "or so" to mean approximately.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Can you tell me who the most popular animal TV star is? You must be astounded to know that the cute animals that we see in movies and on television do not have an easy life either. In some cases, animal stars have been beaten and have not been given food so that they will perform the way the trainers want them to. In addition, although American law does not allow animals to be killed on film, other countries do not seem to mind. You must be relieved to hear that there has been a big push toward animal rights in the last decade or so. Activists have called attention to the issue of animal abuse. This has resulted in a gradual shift away from using animals in TV shows - or at least toward better conditions for those that remain in the industry.

So the next time you are watching an animal perform and you find yourself enjoying the show, you might want to stop and think. That very animal may be a victim of mistreatment and abuse. Where did we go wrong as people?

Let's Practice!

How do you feel about that?

Instructions: Read the sentences. Select the correct answer.

- 1) You _____ to know that cute animals _____ do not have an easy life.
 - a. are astounded, in TV
 - b. must be astounded, on TV
 - c. should be astounded, in TV
- 2) You _____ to hear that there has been a _____ towards animal rights.
 - a. must be relieved, big push
 - b. must being relieved, big push
 - c. must be relieving, big push

Let's Practice!

If you ask me ...

Instructions: Proofread the sentences. Correct the mistakes. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

1. Can you said me who the more popular animal TV star is?
2. What did we went wrong as people?
3. Could to you let me know time the show start?
4. What do I know about animal rights?
5. Do you memory what the name of Michael Jackson's monkey were?

Extension Activity

Look up what has happened to past TV animal stars.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Go online and find out what happened to popular TV animal stars.
- Read about them and write a short summary of their lives before, during and after their TV show performances.
- Share your information with a partner.
- Talk about how the animals, trainers or owners must have felt.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I read and write about animal TV stars.

☐ ☐

I try to talk about how they must feel.

☐ ☐

I ask questions for clarification and to keep the conversation going.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- to be beaten (verb): to suffer from physical abuse
e.g. In some cases, animal stars have been beaten.
- trainer (noun): a person who conditions animals to do something e.g. Animals have not been given food so that they will perform the way the trainers want them to.
- activist (noun): a person who campaigns (or fights) for some kind of social change
e.g. Activists have called attention to the issue of animal abuse.
- a big push (expression): a determined action
e.g. There has been a big push toward animal rights in the last decade or so.
- shift (noun): a movement
e.g. This has resulted in a gradual shift away from using animals in TV shows.
- conditions (noun): the circumstances affecting the way in which animals live or work, especially with regard to their safety or well-being e.g. There has been a shift toward better conditions for animals that remain in the industry.
- mistreatment (noun): the act of treating an animal (or person) cruelly or unfairly
e.g. That very animal may be a victim of mistreatment and abuse.

Learning Points

Asking for Clarification and Emphasizing a Point

You ask for clarification when you want more details of what the other person is talking about.

You can emphasize a point by asking rhetorical questions.

You ask for clarification when it is not clear what the other person is referring to. You ask the other person to be more specific by giving you more information. You can use embedded questions to ask for clarification or for more information. An embedded question is a question within another question or a statement.

Example:

Direct question: Who is the most popular animal TV star?

Embedded question: Can you tell me who the most popular animal TV star is?

Notice the structure of the embedded question. When it contains an auxiliary or the verb to be, you must reverse the positions of the subject and the verb.

Example:

Direct question: Is Buffy the most popular animal on TV?

Embedded question: Do you know if Buffy is the most popular animal TV star?

When you want to make a point, rather than elicit an answer from someone, you can use rhetorical questions.

Example:

Where did we go wrong as people? (The speaker does not want an answer here, but rather wants to emphasize the point that she believes people have made a big mistake in their approach to the treatment of animals.)

Examples:

- Can you tell me who the most popular animal TV star is?
- Do you know what we can do about this?
- Where did we go wrong as people?

Learning Points

Showing That You Understand Someone's Feelings

You use must followed by an adjective when you want to empathize with someone. When you empathize with someone, you show them that you understand their feelings.

Here is the structure to follow:

subject + must + verb + adjective

You must be surprised to hear about the mistreatment of animals.
The animals must be terrified locked in their cages.

You can use either -ed adjectives or -ing adjectives.

Don't forget to include the verb before the adjective.

Examples:

- Patricia: I just watched a documentary about animal abuse.
- Jess: That must be depressing.
- Tom: It must be heartbreaking to see those images
- Bianca: Yes, it is!

