

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Is there anything that can be done?

Learning Outcome

Identify and describe events in the news in a range of social and work contexts.

Ask your partner:

- How much do you know about the issue of animal rights?
- What is the situation in your country regarding animal rights?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about nature and the animal world.
- I can show I understand someone's feelings.
- I can ask for clarification or use rhetorical questions to emphasize a point.

Let's Explore!

Sally blogs about a hot topic. What do you think about it?

* A "hot topic" is a controversial topic.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Animal Entertainment – Offstage

Can you tell me how animals in entertainment really feel? We often see them dancing in circuses, acting in movies, racing, or just playing around for our pleasure in zoos. I know you must feel depressed hearing that when they are out of the public eye, these animal performers often face a life full of misery and pain.

In circuses, when animals aren't on stage, they are most often kept in cages that are too small. In addition, their trainers remove their claws and put muzzles on their mouths. The animals are kept in chains and given tranquilizing drugs so that they won't hurt the people they work with. It must be traumatizing for them.

In some countries where bullfights are popular, people get excited when the bulls die a painful death. In other countries, dogs are trained to tear each other apart, and sharp metal points are put on roosters to kill each other in what people call "cockfights." You must be shocked to learn that animal fighting events have actually become more popular in recent years. Do you know what we can do about this? Is there anything that can be done?

Let's Practice!

I understand how you feel.

Instructions: Organize the mystery sentences. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

1. feel / animals / circus / . / know / about / I / depressed / hearing / must / you
2. them / be / traumatizing / It / for / . / must
3. more / be / popular / recent / events / in / learn / have / shocked / become / years / fighting / must / You / . / to / that / actually / animal
4. be / must / exciting / Watching / bullfights / .

Let's Practice!

I'd like to ask for clarification.

Instructions: Choose the words from the word bank to correctly complete the sentences. Use capitals where necessary.

Word Bank

tell me where / Is there / know what we / what happen to / tell me how / what happens to / tell me way

1. Can you _____ animals in entertainment really feel?
2. Do you _____ can do about this?
3. _____ anything that can be done?
4. Do you know _____ to animals when they are out of the public eye?
5. Could you _____ there is a circus in your town?

Extension Activity

Let's discuss a hot topic.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- With a partner, discuss this statement: All animal performances should be illegal.
- Do you agree or disagree? Explain your opinion to your partner.
- Try to show empathy and ask embedded questions.
- Ask follow-up questions to keep the conversation going.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I discuss a controversial topic with my partner.

☐ ☐

I communicate empathy.

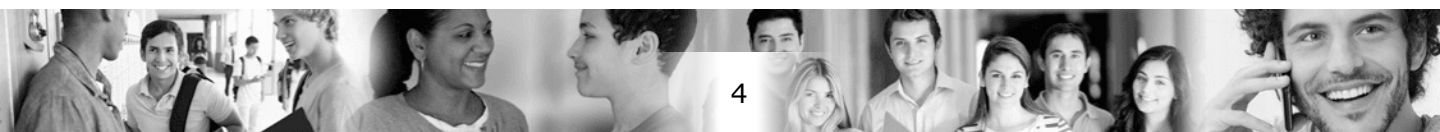

☐ ☐

I ask for clarification and emphasize my point.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- circus (noun): a traveling company of acrobats, trained animals, and clowns that gives performances, typically in a large tent.
e.g. We often see animals performing in circuses.
- the public eye (expression): in front of people
e.g. When the circus animals are out of the public eye, they are sometimes mistreated.
- misery (noun): great sadness or unhappiness
e.g. They often face a life of misery and pain.
- cage (noun): a small enclosure that you cannot escape from e.g. Animals are often kept in cages that are too small for them.
- claw (noun): a curved pointed nail on each digit of the foot in birds, lizards, and some mammals like lions and tigers.
e.g. The trainers remove their claws.
- muzzle (noun): a device placed around the mouth of an animal to keep them quiet and to prevent biting e.g. Trainers put muzzles on their mouths.
- tranquilizing (adjective): having a calming or sedative effect e.g. They are sometimes given tranquilizing drugs.
- bullfight (noun): a public show, particularly in Spain, Portugal, and Latin America, at which a bull is baited and then usually killed for entertainment
e.g. In some countries where bullfights are popular, people get excited when the bulls die a painful death.
- to tear (verb): to rip e.g. In other countries, dogs are trained to tear each other apart.
- rooster (noun): a male chicken
e.g. Sharp metal points are put on roosters to kill each other in what people call "cockfights."

Learning Points

Asking for Clarification and Emphasizing a Point

You ask for clarification when you want more details on what the other person is talking about.

You can emphasize a point by asking rhetorical questions.

You ask for clarification when it is not clear what the other person is referring to. You ask the other person to be more specific by giving you more information.

You can use a question at the beginning of a statement or question to ask for clarification like: Don't you think it sounds a bit too intense?

An embedded question is a question that is included inside another one.

Example:

Direct question: What are you going to do after dinner?

Embedded question: Do you know what you're going to do after dinner?

Look at the chart below for an explanation on how to make embedded questions.

You can also use rhetorical questions to emphasize a point. You use them to make a point rather than to invite an answer from the listener. Rhetorical questions are questions that don't need to be answered.

For example:

What are you going to do? (when there is nothing to be done)

How about that? (when you want to make a point)

Are you kidding me? (when you are upset or surprised)

How should I know? (when you don't know the answer)

Main Question	Embedded Question
Do you know	where they train the animals?
Do you remember	when we saw the dancing monkeys?
Can you tell me	who the best trainer is?
Could you tell me	what the names of the animals are?

Be careful! If the embedded question includes an auxiliary verb or the verb to be, you must reverse the positions of the subject and the auxiliary verb.

Examples:

Learning Points

Direct question: Can you help me?

Embedded question: I wonder if you can help me.

Direct question: Is she an animal trainer?

Embedded question: Do you know if she is an animal trainer?

Examples:

- Can you tell me how animals in entertainment are really feeling?
- Do you know what we can do about this?
- Is there anything that can be done?

Showing That You Understand Someone's Feelings

You use must followed by an adjective when you want to empathize with someone. When you empathize with someone, you show them that you understand their feelings.

Here is the structure to follow:

Subject + must + verb + adjective

You must feel depressed.

You must be excited.

They must be shocked!

It must be terrifying to do that!

You can use either -ed adjectives or -ing adjectives.

Don't forget to include the verb before the adjective.

Examples:

• Paul: I've stayed up all night.

Jessica: You must be tired.

• Tania: It must be fascinating living in Europe.

Bob: Yeah, it is!

